

How to Diagonally Attach Strips

This is a great way to add length to fabric when you don't have quite enough of one long piece.

Take two strips of equal width. Place right sides together at a 90-degree angle, overlapping each 1/4".

Draw a line from the edge where two pieces meet, to the opposite corner as depicted below:

Sew along your marked line. Tip – start sewing with your needle right in the notch area at the top of the picture indicated with the arrow.

Once sewn, trim off the excess, leaving round a 1/4" seam allowance. Press seams open this time.

Trim your fabric and you have a nicely attached piece.
